PROJECT DHARINI

Dharini is working towards dissolution of taboo surrounding menstrual and sexual health and is providing safe and inclusive health services to the entire spectrum of menstruators at a very minimal cost. It also aims to set up a biodegradable Pad manufacturing unit to provide a source of income to transgender folks. Team Dharini has also impacted the lives of several village women by initiating one-to-one talking sessions with them to spread awareness about menstruation and how women should look after their menstrual hygiene.

Issues addressed: Poor understanding of menstrual & sexual health, unaffordability of gynecology services among college students and underprivileged sections, discrimination with the transgender folks in medical institutions.

SUSTAINABLE GOALS

WEBSITE

Weflo is a website that acts as a forum for the interaction of gynecologists and psychologists with women, youth, and trans people. The website provides 1:1 consultation to all menstruators with pride-friendly gynecologists, counselors, and therapists who offer an inclusive space with monitoring at a minimal cost so that people can have access to these services regardless of their gender or economic status.

We have successfully tested WeFlo with our community of transgender men and recorded their responses.

In the past, we have conducted sessions with an audience ranging from children to adults and impacted 200+ people so far.

For every person who bleeds and goes through large ordeals, Dharini represents every one of them.

FEATURES

Faqs and resources

IMPACT

Enactus IGDTUW's Project Dharini is the organization's oldest project and has been running successfully for several years. This project has made a significant impact on the lives of many individuals, particularly women, children, and transgender individuals. The project has touched the lives of over 4000 women, 2000 children, and approximately 100 transgender individuals through its various initiatives. In its early stages, Project Dharini provided employment opportunities to 20 potters, which was a significant contribution to the local community. However, the project has evolved and is now providing essential services related to mental and menstrual health through its web application, WeFlo. Overall, Project Dharini is an exemplary project that has made a significant impact on the lives of many individuals. Its focus on providing essential services and creating employment opportunities has made it an important asset to the local community.

PROJECT ADVA

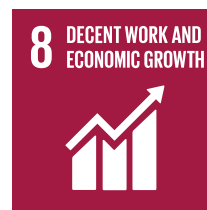

Water is a primary need for human survival, and yet, even to this day, safe and potable water is inaccessible for much of the Indian population. Water depletion currently stands as a global crisis.

The water supplies in Delhi have performed abysmally in potability tests. Out of 1.39 billion, as many as 824 million people face high to extreme degrees of water stress. Enactus IGDTUW took the initiative to come up with Project Adva to create an impact in the sphere of water purification. Project Adva has designed a cost-effective water filtration system for underprivileged communities that do not have access to safe drinking water. We have also developed this product to be biodegradable.

Issues addressed: Lack of clean and affordable drinking water in areas in and around Delhi.

SUSTAINABLE GOALS

PORTABLE WATER FILTER

Delhi fared poorly in a survey conducted to test the potability of water - failing almost eight parameters on average.

After thorough research and development, we designed a product that effectively and efficiently purifies water.

We have modeled a cheap yet efficient biodegradable water filter to provide clean and sanitized drinking water to the economically weaker sections of society.

The filtration system consists of a body, made of clay, which is sourced locally from potter communities. The inside of the system will be a multi-layered filter, which has been designed to be both lightweight and fully functional. The filter layers used in our model are activated charcoal, java plum seeds, and moringa seeds.

FEATURES

Keeps water cool

Filter bag is permeable to residues < 8 μ

Can filter up to 8-10 litres of water

IMPACT

Project Adva recently started in the year 2021 continuously working to attain the sustainable development Goals 6 clean and sanitized drinking water and SDG 3 Good health and well being.

In this journey to achieve the aim, through Adva we have impacted 240+ lives so far that includes the potter community of Kumahar village and women community who have helped us on working on the outer body of the filter model. Except this through our visits and session, we have empowered the underprivileged community by spreading awareness about the need of clean water and how to access it.

Our model was designed keeping in mind the 6E's to have a positive impact on the society to tackle the mammoth problem. The 6E's include :

- Efficiency
- Easy Usage
- Economical
- Eco-friendly
- Easy production
- Entrepreneurship

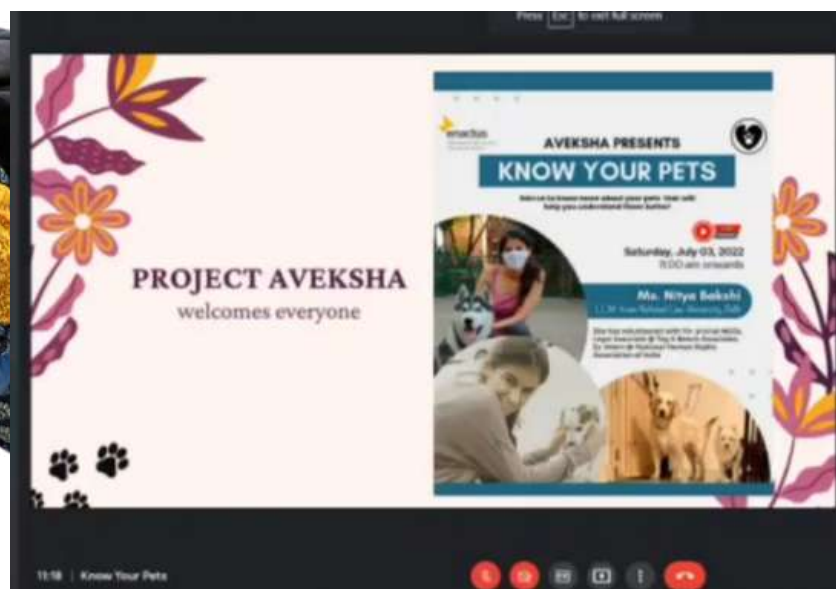

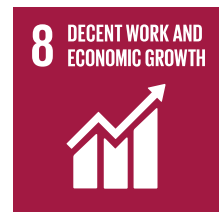

PROJECT AVEKSHA

Aveksha is a proud initiative under Enactus IGDTUW. The founding principle of Aveksha is the welfare and well-being of stray creatures by providing them with necessities for life. We believe that it is our responsibility to look over all aspects of animal well-being which includes feeding, sheltering, disease prevention and treatment, and overall care of the animals, and therefore we plan to provide sustainable, eco-friendly products for injured animals made by marginalized communities. This ensures threefold development, the well-being of animals, employment for the underprivileged, and innovation at a sustainable level.

Issues addressed: Unhealthy lifestyle of animals due to poor sanitation and lack of resources and to provide stray animals with eco-friendly products such as earthen pots, handmade toys, clothes, and mattresses.

SUSTAINABLE GOALS

PROJECT PRAKRIKALA

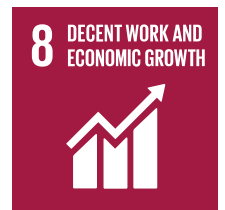

It is a new eco-centric project under Enactus that has replaced Gulkaari since the start of 2023. The main objective of this project is waste management. It focuses on four verticals of reusing: Cloth waste, Plastic waste, Paper waste, and Biowaste

The primary goal of this project, which is dedicated to environmental sustainability, is to tackle the problem of untreated waste and improper management of waste that is detrimental to the environment and leads to health degradation. Locally sourced urban refuse is transformed into upcycled goods and innovative products crafted by under-represented communities, thus promoting their socio-economic development and welfare.

Issues addressed: waste management and environmental sustainability, particularly in urban areas, while also addressing the social and economic challenges faced by underrepresented communities

PROJECT REAP

PURPOSE

“We are sitting on plastic time bomb” SC announced with statistics of 56 lakh tonn of plastic waste generated annually in India with; Delhi accounting for a staggering 689.5 tonnes a day. Handling these issues costs a fortune to Government of India. To tackle the problem of increasing use of plastic, we started our second project in July, 2016: Reap.

Our Social Entrepreneurship Model, Project REAP, would work at this endless supply of waste to produce a line of products to be pitched back to the market. We have been striving to develop a tool (concerned machinery) which shreds the plastic waste into long strings (ribbons) which are used to weave new products.

By devising a tool which shreds plastic bottles, we aim through Project Reap to reduce the production of plastic and recycle the existing bottles to minimize the damage done to the environment. To expand this project, we are planning to create a set of machineries which would shred, mould and transform plastic bottles into sheets which can be used to make viable products.

Products Created

- SHORT TERM GOALS:

The ribbons obtained would be used to create (To be weaved like bamboo and treated with heat to set)

2. Baskets
3. Boxes
4. Containers

 2. Lamp covers
 3. Picture frames
 4. Canopies/Shades

- LONG TERM GOALS

Innovative product line

1. Ink
2. Paints

VISION:

1. Social Aspect
2. Environmental Aspect
3. Financial Aspect

- Social: Being a social entrepreneurship project, the startup would have individuals from the underprivileged strata of society. Within 6 Months of the incubation of the project, we aim to employ 5 individuals of a chosen community (presently in consideration: Acid Attack Victims)
- Environmental: Since the plastic waste is being recycled, waste content would be reduced. Hence, hazards caused due to plastic reduced. Within 6 months of incubation, we plan to recycle up to 100kgs of plastic.
- Financial: A kg of plastic bottles creates 250m of plastic ribbon (36 bottles) 25m plastic ribbon can be used to create products worth ₹700. Using 1kg plastic bottles, an approximate quantity of goods worth ₹7000 can be created. The cost for creating these finished products is ₹4000 (including painting, gluing, finishing products). In one month, even if 5kg plastic is recycled, gross revenue = ₹3000*5 = ₹15000.
